Dear [REDACTED]

Official Private information request for personal information held by the Health Quality & Safety Commission Official Private information request for personal information held by the Health Quality & Safety Commission (the Commission)

I refer to your privacy information request dated 22 April 2020.

The Office of the Privacy Commissioner under Principle 6 of the Privacy Act, gives people the right to request personal information held about them by any organisation, business or government agency.

You requested to have any information provided to you in relation to yourself, [REDACTED], covering a time period between [REDACTED].

After a search of our system records, the information you have requested does not exist.

I am therefore refusing your request under Principle 6, section 29(2c) of the Privacy Act and 18(g) of the OIA, because the Commission does not hold any official information about you.

Yours sincerely
